APPEALS TO CATHOLIC WORLD

The Right Rev. Dom Gasquet, Abbot of the English Benedictines and a member of the commission appointed by Pope Pius X. in 1907 to revise the Vulgate, has arrived in New York and will tour the country and lecture in various cities on the subject of the new version of the Scriptures, which is now in course of preparation. This great work has been in progress since 1907 and is being carried on by a special commission made up of some of the great Scriptural scholars in the Catholic church, and although its labors have already extended over five years the work is far from completed. Benedictine scholars have been searching archives and libraries in every part of Europe, and aunts in distant convents and laymen also have aided. It is planned to give the world the nearest accurate copy of the Latin Bible since the fourth century.

The commission has collected 14,000 manuscripts. Copies of 30,000 pages of Biblical documents were obtained with the camera's aid. Photographs were made of manuscripts too precious to be removed from libraries, and there will be compiled pictorial volumes of every known Bible manuscript in existence. As the learned Benedictine in the known all over the world as one of its foremost students in the domains of church history and Sacred Scripture, his lectures will undoubtedly attract far more than ordinary attention.

A short time ago Abbot Gasquet was requested by the editor of the London Tablet to give a brief account of the results thus far accomplished in the work on which he is engaged. His reply to this request was:

"Six years ago it was announced in the press that the Pope had determined to prepare for a critical revision of the Latin Bible. The need for such a revision has been recognized from the time when in 1592 Pope Clement VIII. published the present authentic edition, and in this age of critical examination of all texts, it has been frequently made a subject of reproach to the Catholic church that nothing has been done for the official Latin text. In the spring of 1907 there for the Holy Father charged the Benedictine Order with the task of making preparations for a full and adequate examination of the Latin text, and as a first step to endeavor by a critical study of the existing Latin MSS. to obtain as nearly as possible the version of St. Jerome. The importance of this first step is obvious. At the present day all scholars are agreed as to the competence of St. Jerome for the work given him by St. Damasus. He had access to Greek and other manuscripts even then considered ancient, which are no longer known to exist; he could compare dozens of texts for every one we now have, and he had means of testing their value, which we do not possess. So clear is the importance of obtaining the pure text of St. Jerome that it is considered by the most competent authorities that the text would probably be found to afford a better basis for the true text of the Septuagint Version than any Greek MSS. now extant. To recover this text is the scope of the present commission.

"By the close of the same year, 1907, a commission had assembled in Rome to discuss the best method of carrying out the wishes of the Pope. From the first it was obvious that the work would be both long and costly. The Holy Father desired that the best methods should be employed regardless of expense. He made himself from the first responsible for all necessary expenses, but he trusted that the Catholic world would soon recognize the importance of this project for religion, and would support it by their contributions. In this expectation the Pope has not been disappointed, and up to the present there has been forthcoming sufficient means to carry on the work. Now, however, a new need has arisen which obliges me to make a wider appeal to the Catholic world. So far we have been most occupied with the collection of material, and with the collection of the existing MSS. with the present Latin text. To facilitate this, at the outset it became necessary to print an edition of this text with a large margin for the purpose of noting the various variants. In fact the print occupied only one-third part of the paper. This entailed great expense, but its use, and indeed necessity, has been obvious from the first to all who are occupied in the work.

"The collations made upon these sheets are returned to Rome when finished, and are bound into volumes. Already this collection forms a large library, which is daily increasing on the shelves of our commission room. But beyond this it was determined that it was imperative, to secure perfect accuracy, to have photographic copies made of practically the ancient texts used in the revision. This also entailed a great expenditure of money, but it may be said that experience has shown it absolutely necessary to have these photographs to appeal to in any question as to the correctness of any collation. Over three hundred volumes of mounted and bound photographs are now available for the use of the workers at the revision.

"From the first it was obvious that our temporary quarters in the Benedictine College of St. Anselmo, on the Aventine would prove to be inadequate for the work. On the need being pointed out to the Holy Father, he suggested as the quarters of the commission a portion of the monastery of St. Callisto, which has been so far used by the community of St. Paul Without the Walls for a summer residence.

"Arrangements have now been made to carry out the Pope's wish, and the place has been taken up by the commission. The setting up of the house will entail great expense; but by the generosity of a benefactor the rent has been provided for ten years, and the repairs and alterations provided for. What is now necessary is if possible to secure a sum which will give the necessary support. It is to appeal for this to the people of America that I am going to start for the United States on August 24. I have no doubt that they will generously respond to my appeal, which is being made with the special blessing and authority of the Holy Father."

IRISH GIRL'S PLUCK.

We noted recently how "a deep-laid" plan of the Tories to defeat home rule by a "snap" or surprise division had failed. The Irish were on hand in full force and the Tories themselves had the surprise. It seems to have been a case of plot and counterplot. The Liberal whips had been shadowing the Conservative whips. They had to hunt railroad depots and to take a note of the movements of every individual Unionist M. P. They had to scheme to get invitations for big Unionist dinner parties and at homes and other social functions, and had to listen to all gossip that might show on which night and in what fashion the Unionists intended "to pounce."

"A few nights ago the Unionist machinations reached a climax when, in obedience to a secret and imperative summons, every available Unionist M. P. was called from far and near—even from the south of France and north of Scotland. Also, however, for the best laid plans of mice and men! Victory was not to be theirs; and when the figures were announced that told of the defeat of the ambush, the Liberals raised cheers that the fiction writer would describe as "making the rafters ring," says Martin Sinclair. Few of the members of Parliament who joined in that demonstration knew how the coup had been discovered and defeated. Only the chief whip and his assistants were in the secret—and from that day the true facts have never been made public, for the simple reason that if the truth had leaked out no further information could come out from the same source. The House of Commons has now risen, and therefore without impropriety it is explained that the facts about the intended coup were first discovered by a brilliant young Irish girl from County Mayo, who, in order to help the Nationalist cause, took a sensible action at the present day all scholars are agreed as to the competence of St. Jerome for the work given him by St. Damasus. He had access to Greek and other manuscripts even then considered ancient, which are no longer known to exist; he could compare dozens of texts for every one we now have, and he had means of testing their value, which we do not possess. So clear is the importance of obtaining the pure text of St. Jerome that it is considered by the most competent authorities that the text would probably be found to afford a better basis for the true text of the Septuagint Version than any Greek MSS. now extant. To recover this text is the scope of the present commission.

USHD IRISH MONEY HERE.

It is perhaps not generally known that Irish money was at one time legal tender in America, and that as far back as the seventeenth century a large quantity of the coins known as "St. Patrick's pennies," which were issued in Ireland under the Confederation of Kilkenny, were brought over to New Jersey by one Mark Newby, and becoming current coin in that Commonwealth were legalized in 1682. The act reads that for the more convenient payment of small sums, Mark Newby, of copper, called "Patrick's half-pence," shall pass as half-pence current coin. This a coin associated with the aspiration to self-government in Ireland over two hundred years ago, and prescribed by the English Government, became legal tender in what was then an English colony. These coins being on the observe a hard seal with his harp, surrounded by a royal crown, and the inscription "Floreat Rex," and on the reverse a representation of St. Patrick, with the inscription, "Quiescat Pibis."

BISHOP SPEAKS GERMAN.

The Bishop of Little Rock, Right Rev. John H. Morris, is proving his versatility and adaptability in more ways than one. His Lordship is an American of Irish extraction, and notwithstanding these two facts he speaks the language of the "Fatherland" quite well; and last week he surprised and pleased all who heard him preach a sermon in the German language to the delegates and visitors to the State convention of the German societies of Arkansas assembled at Pechonhats.

CALL DOWN

For Charles Dobbs, Socialist
Leader When He Attacked
Religion.

Exposes the Real Attitude of His Followers Toward the Church.

Given Stern Rebuke by Protestant Minister at Labor Sunday Meeting.

CREATES AN OBNOXIOUS SCENE

Last Sunday afternoon Charles Dobbs, author of the scandalous article that appeared in the Courier-Journal some years ago about the sacred relics that repose in St. Martin's church and Socialist candidate who receives but few votes, created a rather unlooked-for and deplorable scene at the Labor Sunday meeting held in Central Park. By some unaccountable means Dobbs was permitted to speak for organized labor, but instead he made a violent attack upon the Church and Christian religion, unwittingly showing the real attitude of the Socialists. His statements reflecting on the ministers and the Bible were warmly disputed by the Rev. Dr. Julian S. Sibley, pastor of the Stuart Robinson Memorial Presbyterian church, who declared that "the world's problems, whether those of labor or not, never will be solved by crowding God and Christ out and yielding to a gross materialism." The daily press furnish the following from Dobbs' address, and they are pronounced the words he uttered:

"The first place it must be admitted that there is separation between the laboring masses and the church. The laboring class has always had a resentment for ecclesiastical authority, which takes a text from here and there in the Bible to make the oppressed contented and to keep them in subjection. We are tired of hearing that old text, 'Servants be Subject to your Masters.' We want no masters. I believe that the people are getting away from the churches because they hate the idea of having any priest or preacher stand between them and their God. We need no such dogmas; man can have direct access to God. They also deny to any priest or preacher the right to utter anathemas against them or to upbraid them in any way if they are not faithful to their masters. Probably the reason back of all this is that modern, scientific criticism has completely demolished the old doctrine of the verbal inspiration of the Bible. The people no longer are interested in your talk about the spiritual life or your vague metaphysical speculations; they care nothing for the doctrine of the Trinity or transubstantiation, but if the gospel of Jesus Christ means the brotherhood of man then they are mightily interested in it. Otherwise, if Christianity is really interested in the brotherhood of man it had better begin to show it. If the churches can not see that the basic principles of the labor movement are those of Jesus of Nazareth they are way behind the times and are but mumbling over the dry bones of theology. The world long ago has tired of this. We care not for what you preach and what you sing, but for what you do and what you live."

Rev. Dr. Sibley, when introduced, declared he came to the meeting not intending to enter into an argument but to preach to Christian people. "But I want to say," he said, "for the benefit of the gentleman who has just preceded me that not on scientific or any other grounds has the verbal inspiration of the Bible been demolished. He too easily sweeps aside the very foundations of the church of God. We Christians believe that the Bible is the word of God and inspired from cover to cover. If I did not believe it I would not be preaching the gospel here today. I resent the insinuations and the slurs directed against what I and every other Christian minister represent, the greatest labor organization in the world, the church of the Lord Jesus Christ. This church does not promise men ease and luxury and license, but rather it elevates and ennobles them, because it makes them co-workers with Almighty God, the Master laborer of the universe. It strikes me that many who are crying their piteous for all the evils of the day are too much concerned with making a living rather than with right living. If all men but lived right there would be little difficulty in those who wished to make a living. Men of this class are seeming to forget the teachings of Him who said that our lives do not consist of the things we possess, but in righteousness. I deny that it is the church's business to follow every philosophy of the hour, for the affair of the church should be all things to train man to live for God and eternity. It is summed up by its Divine Founder, 'Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness, and all things else shall be graciously added unto you.'"

The following day this fellow Dobbs made a lame denial of his utterances, but those who heard him insist that he was correctly reported. Any who read his article on St. Martin's church know the real value to be placed on the sincerity of his professions of respect for religion. Dobbs also showed his disrespect for the time and place by moving about smoking cigarettes, for which he was called down by another minister, Rev. F. C. Sierle, of the German Methodist church, who upbraided him for his conduct among the throng of worshippers while a hymn was being sung and Dr. Sibley was speaking. After the meeting Dr. Sibley had this to say: "I feel that it was a great mistake for this man to be called upon to speak. He had no place here, for he does not represent organized labor, and not only from the teachings of the propaganda which he represents, but even from his words addressed here to Christian people, it is plain that he is not in sympathy with Christianity. It was a sorry thing to hear the Scriptures made light of, the science of God characterized as 'mumbling over dry bones' and the great truths of Christianity brushed aside for sophistry."

RECENT DEATHS.

Mrs. Helena Harlege, who had been long ill at her home, 2613 Bank, was released from earthly suffering Tuesday morning. She was fifty years old and is survived by three daughters and a son. The funeral took place Thursday morning from St. Cecilia's church, and was attended by many mourning friends and relatives.

John C. Joyce, thirty years old and a clerk for the Louisville & Nashville railroad, died Sunday morning at his home, 1909 High street, leaving a wife and three-year-old son to mourn his death. He was born in this city and was popular among his friends and acquaintances. His funeral took place Tuesday morning from the Cathedral and was largely attended.

The funeral of Michael S. Holleran was held Thursday from St. Bridget's church. Rev. Father Jansen being celebrant of the solemn requiem mass. In the death of Mr. Holleran the parish lost its oldest member, whose life was an example of sterling worth. He was eighty-three years old and had long been a resident of this city. Surviving him are several grown children.

Friends of Louis J. Hugelmeyer were painfully shocked when they learned of his death Tuesday morning, following an illness of less than a week. Born in Germany twenty-nine years ago, he came to Louisville in 1903, and since had been engaged in business with his uncle, Louis Hugelmeyer, at Center and Chestnut streets. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Emma Schlichter, and two children, for whom there is felt most profound sympathy. The funeral services were held Thursday morning from St. Mary's church, with a solemn requiem mass for the repose of his soul.

SISTERS EXTEND THANKS.

The Sisters at Sts. Mary and Elizabeth Hospital extend their grateful thanks to one and all of their generous friends and benefactors, who so cheerfully gave their time, labor and money and by their Christian example encouraged and made their annual summer festival the success of the year. Following are the awards made of the combination book prizes:

Diamond ring, Mrs. B. Tierney, 211 West Broadway.
Gentleman's gold watch, Andrew Yost, 2006 Maple street.
Leather couch, F. L. Reeder.
Silk quilt, J. J. Paine, Bardstown.
Five dollars in gold, Leo Link, Nazareth.

Barrel of flour, Clay Hall, 958 Twelfth street.
Hand painted vase, Agnes Hahlab, 254 South Spring street.
Gold chain rosary, Joe Carey, 1216 South Floyd street.
Hand embroidered table cover, Mrs. J. B. Koenig, 503 East Ormsby avenue.
Hand embroidered center piece, John D. Fallon, 918 Fehr avenue.

CAMP OUT AND FISH.

From the Frankfort State Journal we glean that Lieut. Gov. Edward J. McDermott, who is taking a vacation and rest this summer on the Kentucky river, left last week for Keokuk, as the guest of J. J. King. Others in the party were Miss Susan McDermott, Edward McDermott, Jr., and Watson McDermott of Louisville; Misses Mary Joe Walters and Estelle Meagher, and Messrs. Harry King, of Louisville, and Leo and Paul Meagher. They will be gone for several days, during which fishing will constitute the chief diversion of their stay. Lieut. Gov. McDermott and his family have been in the city since Tuesday, as the guests of Miss Fannie Crittenden.

DEDICATION OF CATHEDRAL.

While to outward appearances the Cathedral at Newstead avenue and Laidell boulevard, St. Louis, has been completed, interior decorations will not be finished until after January 1, 1914. The dedication of the great temple will take place some time in January and will call for an elaborate ceremony. Prominent prelates from all parts of the United States will attend, when the first mass will be celebrated by Archbishop Glennon. The Cathedral so far has cost $2,000,000 and an extra million will be spent in decorating the interior and in equipment.

OLDEST CASTLE.

Kilkenny castle is one of the oldest inhabited houses in the world, many of the rooms being much as they were eight hundred years ago.

BROADSIDE

Fired Into the Menace and Its Followers by Dr. Charles Cummings.

Only a Knave or Fool Persists in Charging Disloyalty to Catholics.

Catholic Civil Allegiance Exemplified On Every Battlefield.

STRONG LETTER TO A BIGOT

Charles Cummings, M. D., of Williamsport, Pa., whose three challenges to the Menace and its editor, "Rev." Theodore Walker, and Tom Watson still remain unanswered, in a letter to one Mr. DeWald in Brann's Iconoclast sends a broadside into the bigoted crowd, from which we extract the following:

And Catholics and patriotism, Mr. DeWald! Now here is citizenship from Aurora, just "east 'em alive." "Caught with the goods," Walker says. "Catholics owe allegiance to the Pope, and therefore can not be loyal to the Stars and Stripes?" He sure does have some hard time to keep the Pope from gobbling up this country. Wrong again, Ted; awfully wrong. Open up the lid of your intelligence box, you American bigot, and let a little sunshine in. The twin evils of invincible ignorance and villainous bigotry are responsible for this twaddle about the disloyalty of Catholics. Let us once for all make an attempt to drive this thing into these dense minds. Suppose Pius X., who is spiritual head of the Catholic church, was at the same time the political head or King of Italy. Suppose that Italy was in war with the United States. Now by operation of this principle of Catholic loyalty and civil allegiance the Italian Catholic would be obliged to defend his country, incidentally thereby fighting for the Pope. The Catholics in the United States, by operation of exactly the same principle, would be obliged to fight in defense of their country, and therefore against the Pope. We think this ought to be clear to all intelligent minds. A truly genuine Catholic can not be anything else than a patriot. If he were disloyal to his church it would follow as surely as night the day he would not be loyal to country or to friend.

What could give you a clearer proof of the principle of Catholic civil allegiance as contradistinguished from his spiritual affiliation than was so heroically exemplified on every battlefield of the American rebellion? The Catholic who wore the blue, as he who wore the gray, held exactly the same spiritual relation to the Pope, and yet, schooled by their church that they must defend the flag of their allegiance, they freely marched to battle and to death in defense of the blue or gray, according as their civil allegiance dictated. Just so has this principle been attested to by the blood of Catholics upon every battlefield of every war in every land since the dawn of Christendom. He who, knowing these facts, persists in charging disloyalty to Catholics is either a knave or a fool, or both.

And as to Catholics' loyalty to the Stars and Stripes? If standing by those lonely twin slabs at beautiful and historic Mount Vernon the spirit of the father of his country could speak to you he would tell you a Carroll, a Conway, a Barry, a DeKalbe, a Montgomery, a Pulaski, a Moulton, a Wayne, a Lafayette, a Molly Pitcher and thousands of other Catholics gave freely of their money and their lives that the United States might take its place among the nations of the world. He would tell you that this glorious triumph never could have been achieved without this Catholic sacrifice. If this does not convince you of Catholic loyalty, go yonder to the tomb of the gallant hero of Appomattox. His spirit would summon around him Sheridan, Rosecrans, Meade, Buell, Ord, Dahlgren, Cochran, Kearney, Harney, Croghan, Keegan, Meagher, Dougherty, Ryan, and two hundred and fifty thousand other Catholics who gallantly wore the blue and fought to preserve the Union on every battlefield from Sumter to Appomattox. He would hurl the lie back into your teeth and would tell you that if it were not for the heroic sacrifice of money and lives of these patriotic Catholics this country, born at Lexington and baptized by the blood of Catholic heroes, would have been rent in twain and the Stars and Stripes would not today float in peace and triumph over all this happy and united land.

The Catholics assailed the President? Why, sir, that lie is the foulest lie ever uttered, black as hell itself. It is one of the silliest that ever "crawled out of the diseased brain" of the untracked preacher from Aurora Borealis. I am not concerned as to how these assassins died, as they were facing the awful stenography that may have embraced the Catholic faith. Murderers have embraced other faiths when confronted with death. I wonder what this Aurora criminal would do when that terrible moment of retribution comes. One thing is as certain as that the stars shine at night; these assassins were not Catholics when the deed was done. There are millions of people in the world making an ass of Catholics who have no more right to that honored title than they have a right to possess the British crown.

CATHOLIC WOMEN ORGANIZE.

A Federation of Catholic Women Societies of Cincinnati and vicinity was organized last Friday night at the Santa Maria Institute. The movement was the result of the refusal of the Federation of Catholic Societies of Hamilton county to allow the women societies to affiliate on an equal footing with the men societies. The new federation, which was organized with the permission and approval of Most Rev. Henry Moeller, Archbishop of Cincinnati, starts with a membership of about 4,000 women. Works of religion, education, charity and social reform will be taken up. The federation at its inaugural meeting went on record as opposing the extreme style of dress of women today. The officers are: President, Miss Anna C. Minogue, associate editor of the Catholic Telegraph; First Vice President, Mrs. Anna Brossard; Ladies' Auxiliary Knights of St. John; Second Vice President, Mrs. Peter Weber, Ladies' Auxiliary Ancient Order of Hibernians; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. A. L. Summers, Catholic Ladies of Columbia; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Thomas McNally, Ladies' Catholic Benevolent Association; Treasurer, Sister Bladina, Sisters of Charity of Santa Maria Institute; Marshal, Mrs. Daniel Murphy, Ladies' Catholic Benevolent Association.

HAD BIG DAY.

The Catholic Knights of the Falls Cities had a big day at Jasper, Ind., last Sunday, when between 400 and 500 took advantage of the Central Committee excursion to the Dubois county capital. Leaving Louisville at 7:30 the train reached Jasper at 11, where the Kentucky State officers, the Central Committee and Knights and their ladies were met by Capt. Phil Kunkel and the Jasper Knights with their band and escorted to Maple Park. There were a band concert and reception for the visitors. In the afternoon, preceded by the band, all marched to the Jasper College campus, where they witnessed an exciting ball game, the Jasper team being victorious by a score of 8 to 6. The rest of the day was spent in visiting the fine church and college buildings and other points and being entertained by the citizens, whose homes were all open to the visitors. This was indeed the most enjoyable as well as successful excursion ever given over the Southern railway, largely due to the excellent work of Chairman Ben Kruse and Passenger Agent Carroll Burch, who left nothing undone that would add to the comfort of the excursionists, who arrived home at 11 o'clock.

O'SHAUGHNESSY.

The man who has been charged with the most delicate negotiations in the Mexican situation is Charge d'Affaires Nelson O'Shaughnessy, of the American Embassy at Mexico City. He is regarded by the State Department as the one man in the diplomatic service who is qualified to deal with Huerta. O'Shaughnessy is thirty-seven years old, the son of the principal promoter of the Nicaraguan canal, who lost his fortune in the collapse of that enterprise. Nelson O'Shaughnessy attended Georgetown University, obtained a degree from Oxford, also studying international law in London and living on the continent until he had mastered several languages. On March 17, 1904, he was named Secretary of the legation at Copenhagen, serving as Charge for several months. On March 17, 1906, he was made Third Secretary at Berlin, and three years later went to Vienna as Second Secretary. On July 26, 1911, he was named Second Secretary at Mexico City.

STUDENTS FOR MISSIONS.

American aspirants to the foreign missions may today find an outlet for their zeal. Several of the religious orders, notably the Franciscans, Jesuits, Holy Ghost Fathers, the Congregation of Notre Dame, the Brothers of Mary, La Salette Fathers and the Society of the Divine Word, are beginning to provide subjects for the field. Many will note with interest that the newly formed American Foreign Mission Seminary at Maryknoll, Ossining, N. Y., will begin its second year on September 14, taking students for philosophy and theology. This seminary will also open an apostolic school in Scranton on September 8, under the name of the Sacred Heart Apostolic School for Foreign Missions. Boys over fourteen years of age and up to twenty-one will be received at this house if they are well recommended by a priest and have an inclination to the foreign missions. Such youths are encouraged to write to the seminary directors at Maryknoll.

TRINITY COUNCIL.

Trinity Council's Mammoth Cave excursion last Sunday was everywhere successful and was enjoyed by about 200 people. All who made the trip commend the committee for its excellent management. The excursionists arrived home in the best of spirits, saying they will again accompany Trinity next year. Owing to the numerous Labor day attractions there was not the usual attendance at Monday night's meeting, but nevertheless plans were formed for Trinity's annual fall euchre, one of the greatest of the year and with more prizes than any other.

ONLY KNOW CAMPAIGN LEADERS

At a meeting of the Democratic nominees held in the Tyler Hotel Thursday afternoon it was decided to begin campaigning right away, and enough speakers were secured to cover every precinct in the wards and county if necessary. Much enthusiasm prevailed and it was the general sentiment of those present that the ticket headed by Dr. Buchemeyer for Mayor would win by a handsome majority and that the Progressive crowd, without the magnetism of Roosevelt as a leader this year, would be a trailer in the race.

Realizing that the public was tired of its efforts in attempting to make burglar scarce a campaign issue for the Bull Moose party, the Louisville Herald is now endeavoring to make the Pfanz-Pfoster contest a platform for the Progressives, although the court records showed that Mr. Foster had a decisive majority, this, too, in spite of the Progressive money used in aiding Mr. Pfanz in his suit, $100 being contributed by P. H. Callahan, of the Louisville Varnish Company, whose friends state that this was probably due to his lack of knowledge of the ways of wild politicians or the history of past elections in Louisville.

As stated before, the Progressive organ, the Herald, is casting about for any issue to muddy the mind of the voter and that will serve to keep under cover the misfit aggregation posing as Progressive candidates, the Herald having printed Mr. Austin's picture several times, but has never designed to give its readers a line on the other eighty odd candidates. Many are forced to conclude that Dunca Clark and the other machine leaders of the Bull Moose have planned to keep their charges in the background and will not even publish a little biographical sketch of the men whom they want to trust with our public offices, and who, as the Herald claims, will give us a splendid administration.

Every voter knows the Democratic and Republican nominees at least by sight, and a majority of voters and taxpayers can even give a little review of their public and private life, and it isn't exactly fair to the voters to hide the light of the Bull Moose candidates under a bushel, that is if they possess half the virtues that Mr. Dunca Clark speaks so glowingly of in his columns.

Now things are different in regard to their campaign committee, photographing candidates, and as Fire Chief Tyson, ex-State Senator Labe Phelps, former Democrats, appearing with much regularity, these three always being spoken of as Democrats notwithstanding that Davis and Tyson were active workers for the Republican ticket in 1909, while Phelps ran on the Tyler ticket, to insure Democratic chances, and as one leading Democrat remarked the other day, "Labe Phelps has been out of the fold so long he wouldn't know a Democratic rooster if he met it in the road."

It has been suggested that Messrs. Vance and Clark, the Progressive Democrats, still pursue their course of ignoring their candidates that the Democratic speakers later on will try to repair the neglect by telling on the stump just who some of them are, and the Kentucky Irish American will furnish some of the sketches which the Herald is so glibly about.

PASSES AWAY WHILE PRAYING.

L. J. Fallon, who for the last ten years has been manager for the Fallon Cose Company, and was a well known business man of Lexington, was found dead, kneeling by his bedside in the attitude of prayer when a member of his family went to awake him for breakfast Wednesday. It is supposed that Mr. Fallon, who was a devout Catholic, had risen to pray as usual his early morning devotions and that death came before his prayer was ended. Mr. Fallon was fifty-three years old and was born and reared in Cincinnati, where his aged mother and other relatives still live. He left there about thirty-five years ago and has lived in Lexington practically ever since. He has been for ten years manager of the Fallon Cose Company, which operated two large coal yards, and was a active member of St. Paul's church. He is survived by eight children, his aged mother and several sisters and brothers. His wife died last May.

SEEING IRISH SIGHTS.

The Kentucky Irish American received good news this week from Rev. Father Riley, of Lexington, who is making an extended tour of the country and seeing all the points of interest. He was at Killarney and was enjoying good health and having the time of his life.

LOUISVILLE, KY. SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6 1913

WHAT Y. M. I. OFFERS.

Mackin and Trinity Councils, Y. M. I., offer the Catholic young men of Louisville for nominal monthly dues advantages that can not be obtained elsewhere for more money. Located on Twenty-sixth street and Baxter avenue, both on car lines, they are but a few minutes' ride from the center of the city. Mackin and Trinity provide opportunity to cultivate the acquaintance of the best Catholic young men and boys of Louisville, and also library rooms, in which can be found current magazines, the latest books and the best classical literature of the day. The pool rooms, well furnished, give opportunity to improve the game of pocket billiards, while the shower baths, splendidly equipped, with hot or cold water, soap and towel service, are greatly appreciated. The dance halls on the second floor of each, with windows on all sides insuring a free circulation of air, have the best floors for dancing in the city, with pianos installed for use any time. Committee meeting rooms, card rooms and parlors, furnish ample conveniences for social intercourse and a place where Catholics can meet on common ground. The Y. M. I. here also pays sick and death benefits, all for sixty cents a month or two cents a day. This is the organization where the young man gets his money's worth and then some. There is no reason why the membership should not be doubled during the coming winter season.

NOTE THIS FACT.

Our bilious friends who are everlastingly bemoaning the fact that if the Catholic church ever became a ruling power in this country, Protestants would probably be all driven into the sea, should note the recent action of the constituent assembly of Paraguay, which is a thoroughly Catholic country. Nicaragua recently adopted this article: "The religion of the State is the Catholic, Apostolic and Roman. No laws can be passed contrary to the liberty of the church, or restrictive of its judicial personality. No one shall be molested for his religious opinions, nor compelled to profess any creed or observe any practices contrary to his conscience." Some difference between this and the action of the bigots in this country in early days, who killed Quakers, Jews and Catholics on account of their religious beliefs.

INDORSE HIS POLICY.

Some English newspapers are inclined to criticize President Wilson's policy, but the President probably will find sufficient consolation for that in the fact that his policy is indorsed by the American people—witness the unanimous demonstration of approval that his message called forth in Congress—and he is receiving the moral support of "certain great powers." There have been no important developments this week, and therefore the hope is gaining ground that the Mexican problem yet remains in a fair way of being settled peacefully.

CARE FOR POOL.

The Little Sisters of the Poor now number 5,793 and they are caring for 45,913 homeless old people. They have 306 houses, fifty-seven of which are in North and South America, one of them located in Louisville at Tenth and Magazine, where many Protestant and Catholics found comfort and shelter in their old age and happily passed away. These good Sisters are some of those awful women that the Menace and its ilk would slander. They are working for God and humanity and the Menace is doing absolutely nothing for anybody but incessant barking.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

Writing on the future of Socialism and the death of August Bebel, the strongest leader the Socialist party ever developed, Robt. Ellis Thompson, in the Irish World, propounds some questions that Bebel's followers will find difficult and he slow to answer. Bebel was born to poverty, and acquired wealth, and yet remained a Socialist. How he could grow rich while believing that the product in every act of labor-production belongs in its entirety to the laborer and acting on that belief, the writer is unable to see. If this were cleared up it might help to the answer of another question:

How is the growth of capital to be maintained, so as to meet the needs of a growing population, when the workmen take as their own the entire product and leave neither profits nor dividends to the Social State, their sole employer. Or is that to be right for the Social State which is now denounced as practical theft when done by the individual capitalist? Or is the population to be kept down to what the existing mass of capital will furnish employment for? Are we to have a stereotyped condition of society, without progress or outlook, beyond the satisfaction of the needs of the present number of people, to the exclusion of invention and improvement? And what if the Socialist theory had been put into practice in the Stone Age, before the rise of any individualist capital, when every man made for himself the rude tools which could be hammered out of flint? How could the race of mankind have got any farther than that?

THEY WANT NAME ONLY.

In October, our over-the-fence Protestant Episcopalians who want to be known as Catholics—nominal Catholics—will make a great fight to re baptize their organization and call it the Catholic church, which prompts the query: If the present Prince of Wales, heir to the English throne, become a member of this High Church party of the Church of England and therefore should call himself a Catholic, how would he, when coming to the throne as King, take an oath that he is a Protestant? When England was Catholic, King and people, they swore religious fealty to the only Church of Christ, the one having its head in Rome. When the Protestants got control they put in the clause which bars anyone but a Protestant from the English throne. The introduction of this question of change of name has been a source of wrangling in every convention of the Episcopalians. We shall hear some "tall talking" this year if the preliminary committee doesn't chloroform the bill before it gets before the house.

Dom Gasquet, the learned Benedictine and Chairman of the commission conducting the revision of the Latin Vulgate Bible, has arrived in this country, and under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus will lecture in all the cities upon the great project instituted by Pope Pius X. Elsewhere in this issue Dom Gasquet explains the object of his visit to America, which Catholics will read with interest.

All Louisville and Kentucky was placed in mourning Wednesday morning when the appalling news was received that Dr. Joseph E. Marvin and his wife and daughter lost their lives in the awful railroad disaster at New Haven, Conn. They were known for their hospitality and benevolence, and their deaths leave a void that will be widely felt.

CREATES REAL BEAUTY.

Would you be beautiful? See to it that you reflect only that which is beautiful in the world. See to it that only beautiful thoughts mold your features. Watch that bitterness, envy, hate, jealousy, malice and kindred evil emotions do not work unseen and paint your face with signs of ugliness that disfigure the soul. This is a lesson in philosophy which can not be lightly regarded, nor can it be passed by as a fantastic theory. It is the truth itself. And the strange, wonderful feature of it is that while nature may mold the form and face in homely fashion, the beauty of the mind will make them radiant. Beauty of face does not lie in creams and cosmetics—they are but embellishments. Real beauty, in its foundations, comes from the mind. You would not use a poisonous cosmetic. See to it that that poison is no part of the foundation of your beauty, your mind.

WELCOME THEIR BISHOP.

Accompanied by the Very Rev. John P. O'Connell, the Right Rev. Joseph Schrems, Bishop of Toledo, arrived home last Sunday from a four months' trip to Europe, and was accorded a welcome surpassing anything ever witnessed in that city and that was concluded with a jubilee reception in Memorial Hall on Thursday night. Sunday afternoon there was a monster parade when the Bishop was escorted to the Cathedral. His homecoming was made almost as memorable as was his entrance to Toledo on the Sunday in October, 1911, when he came to be enthroned as the first Bishop of the diocese.

THE IRISH FATHER.

My colleen dhas, my colleen,
You're sailing far from me,
Like the wild geese you're flying
Beyond the wide, blue sea;
My colleen dhas, my colleen,
I'll never see you more,
God bless you and preserve you
On the stranger shore.

My colleen dhas, my colleen,
I see you as of yore,
With your golden curls entwined
My old gray coat around,
When she, who had your eyes of blue,
Would sing her happy song;
God bless her and preserve her,
I won't be from her long.

My colleen dhas, my colleen,
I see you as a bride,
In the far-off land so happy
With him, your love and pride;
I'll bless you both, my colleen,
As I whisper, "God knows best,"
I'll miss you in my lonely years,
But here I wish to rest.

It's here she is now sleeping,
She'd bid me with her stay,
The youthful bride who left you
When she was called away;
She wants me here beside her grave
To tell her of your joys,
My colleen dhas, God bless you
Till we meet in Paradise.
—Josephine Byrne Sullivan.

It will be conducted by the ladies of the parish, who promise the players a pleasant evening and handsome favors. The same night at 10 o'clock the prizes contested for at the Spring Bank picnic will be awarded.

DECLINES POSITION.

Through a resignation to take effect immediately the Rev. Joseph P. McGuire has withdrawn from the position of Special Commissioner of Catholic activities and events of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. The reason given for severing his connection with the Exposition is that he does not believe it becoming his office as a clergyman to serve as a Special Commissioner. In his letter he expressed appreciation for the "unfailing cooperation" of the Exposition officials.

GREAT GUEST COMES.

While the cobbler mused, there passed his path a beggar drenched by the driving rain; he called him in from the stormy street and gave him shoes for his bruised feet. The beggar went, and there came a cobbler, her face with wrinkles of sorrow, a bundle of faggots bowed her back, and she was spent with the wren and rack. He gave her his loaf and staid her load as she took her way on the weary road. Then to his door came a little child, lost and afraid in the world so wild. Catching it up, he gave the milk in the waiting cup, and led it home to its mother's arms, out of the reach of the world's alarms. The day went down in the crimson west, and with it the hope of the blessed Guest; and Conrad sighed as the world turned gray: "Why is it, Lord, that your feet delay? Did you forget that this was the day?" Then soft, in the silence a voice was heard: "Lift up your heart, for I kept my word. Three times I came to your friendly door; three times my shadow was on your floor; I was the beggar with bruised feet; I was the woman you gave to eat; I was the child on the homeless street."—Edwin Markham.

AFTER THE SPEEDERS.

The police have been doing excellent work this week in capturing the reckless speeders who ignore the law and endanger life. And it is gratifying to see Judge Holdrick impose the limit on all who are caught.

BECOMES CONVENT.

Contractors have been busy repairing and putting in shape the former Court House of the city of Pembina, N. D., which will be opened as a convent school this month by the missionary Oblate Nuns. The place will be incorporated under the name of "The Academy of Mary Immaculate." The property has been purchased by the Citizens and Commercial Club of Pembina and donated to the Oblate Sisters.

OPENED BY BISHOP.

Right Rev. Bishop Schrems pronounced the invocation at the opening of the Central States Printers' Exposition and convention held this week at Toledo. The first session was held Tuesday morning, when the Bishop faced the largest gathering of printers and publishers and representatives of other branches of the graphic arts ever assembled in this country.

UNDERGOES OPERATION.

The Right Rev. J. A. Duffy, Bishop of Kearney, Neb., suffered an attack of appendicitis and last week underwent an operation at St. Joseph's Hospital in Denver. The operation was successful and everything seems favorable for an early recovery of the Bishop, a fact which his many friends were pleased to learn.

EVANSVILLE.

The cornerstone of the new Church of St. Benedict at Evansville was laid Sunday with impressive ceremonies. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. Father Basil, of Jasper, Ind. The Knights of Columbus took part in the exercises. The new church will cost more than $40,000.

THEIR SAFETY VALVE.

Father McDonald, who is a Chaplain in the navy, said the navy is now 85 to 90 per cent. temperate. "We have," he said, "by actual enumeration 12 per cent. total abstainers and 85 per cent. moderate men. The old days are passing and men do not return to the ship drunk. There are men in the navy who go ashore, take a glass of beer and then go their way. They will take a pledge against whiskey, but want their beer as a safety valve."

COUNTS FOR WOMEN.

Sweetness, daintiness and cleanliness are qualities which every woman should possess, and they are qualities that gather to us all the best things of life—friendship, affection, self-respect, ambition and happiness. Without them one is scarcely a woman—certainly not a live one, but just a human individual who chances to be passing through the vale of smiles and who is not taking any notes on the way.

FIGURES THAT STARTLE.

During the last three months the total damage done to property in England by the militant, suffrage has exceeded $5,000,000. It is estimated the suffrage campaign is now costing England $25,000,000 a year.

MIRACLES AT LOURDES.

Italian pilgrims who have returned from Lourdes tell of nineteen miraculous cures wrought at the famous shrine. Several of them were certified to by Italian doctors at the Bureau des Constatations.

HINTS ON STYLE.

Hats will remain small and medium for fall.

The attempt to launch high colors in millinery has not met with any great success.

The French variation of the lingerie dress—lace tunic and black satin skirt—is seen daily.

A current red serge, trimmed with dark blue satin at the cuffs and revers, is chic and becoming.

The all tulle hat of black is quite the thing, the transparent crown leaving the coiffure plainly to be seen.

The dividing line between tunic and skirt drapery is so dim that one can scarce distinguish the one from the other.

The vest effect must be a feature of the new neckwear. It has been accepted by fashion as a touch worth while.

Very popular is the normal waist line, with the broad sash, which suggests the upper line of a high attachment.

Mallie is more used than ever, and there is scarcely a gown without the plaited frills or ruffle of this soft material.

To outline the natural lines of the head special attention is paid to bandeaux. They are jeweled and barbaric.

DUTCH STORY.

A Dutchman was going to cross a bridge. He was riding in a little cart drawn by a goat. The toll man came out and said: "Here, you've got to pay toll before you can pass this bridge."

"What to pay toll?"

"Yes, five cents to cross this bridge."

After an argument the Dutchman paid the five cents and went on. In the afternoon he came back again, only this time he had the goat sitting on the seat, and he was dragging the cart himself.

Out came the toll man and said: "Here, you know you've got to pay five cents."

The Dutchman shook his head, and pointing to the goat, said:

"Don't talk to me—ask the driver."

CROAGH PATRICK.

Where the Atlantic waves the Irish coast at one of its westernmost points nestles Clew Bay with its myriad isles. Thereabouts the renowned Grace O'Malley (Grainne Ní Mhallie, whose name is so often wrongly corrupted to Grannille), once made history, and in one of those isles over which, in reality if not in name, she once ruled as Queen, all that was mortal of her now reposes.

But long before Grainne appeared on the world's stage and began her romantic if somewhat stormy career, there were those who made history on the margin of Clew Bay. One there was in particular. Near at hand there towers above the bay a bare, solitary, lofty mountain. It rises sheer from the plain. It is isolated and its more or less conical shape. Hence its name. In far distant days it bore another name, but for many ages past it has been known as Croagh Patrick; locally it is often referred to as "the Croagh."

Since the fifth century history and legend have associated Croagh Patrick with Ireland's apostle. On its bare and lofty summit did he perform his celebrated fast of forty days and forty nights. There did he engage in long and earnest prayer. There did he struggle with the powers of darkness. There did the angel appear to him. There, as immemorial tradition has it, did he ask and persist in asking until his prayer was granted, that the faith of the race whom he had won for Christ should never fail.

For ages after Patrick had passed from earth to heaven, there to make ceaseless intercession for the race of his predilection, the crest of Croagh Patrick continued to be a place of pilgrimage. So indeed it remained almost to our own day. Fallen into abeyance for some time, the annual pilgrimage was resumed ten years ago. Since then it has year by year grown in popularity and dimensions. This year's pilgrimage, which took place Sunday, July 27, seems to have eclipsed all its predecessors.

The summit of Croagh Patrick is now crowned by an oratory which serves for the religious exercises of the annual pilgrimage. In this tiny oratory on the day of the recent pilgrimage the Adorable Sacrifice was incessantly offered almost from dawn to midday. The celebrants of these masses came not only from all parts of Ireland, but from places as far apart as Canada, Texas, Ohio, Massachusetts and Africa. The crowd of pilgrims that ascended the mountain during the forenoon was enormous. In the language in which Patrick preached Father Augustine, of the Capuchins, delivered a powerful sermon to those assembled. Later Dr. McCarthy, professor of ecclesiastical history in Maynooth College, delivered an eloquent sermon in English.

Verily is Croagh Patrick a holy mountain. It symbolizes some of the rarest and most cherished traditions of the Irish church. The reumption in these our days of the great annual pilgrimage to the site of Patrick's fasting and of his wrestling for the perpetuity of the faith of the Gael, and its continued and ever increasing success, bear eloquent testimony to the vitality and fervor of Irish faith; and are a happy augury for its future. No small thing this in an age when in so many lands religious indifference is so markedly on the increase and the faith once delivered to the saints has grown so cold. May the pilgrimage to Croagh Patrick and the faith of which it is so eloquent an expression endure unto the consummation of things!

LABOR DAY MEANING.

The first Monday in September, generally known as Labor day, marked another milestone in the roadway of what has become one of the most important phases of our national life. To countless numbers the day has no other meaning than one of rest, recreation and pleasure; but to those to whom the credit must be given of having this day in the year dedicated to the cause of labor, a greater significance is attached to it. To the toilers it means more than the marching of mighty hosts of workers and the plaudits of admiring friends. To them it is a commemoration of deeds executed both in the past and present in the interest of humanity; to them it is a just and proper recognition of the dignity and honor of labor by a grateful nation, a tribute to those who have made this the greatest nation under the sun. But greater far than the exhibition of the nation's acknowledgement of labor's worth is the benefit that the day was intended to bring to those to whom the day was dedicated, for no person can witness the celebration of such a day without having a more exalted idea of American citizenship and more intense feeling of patriotism and love of country such as ours with such a heterogeneous population the instilling of these sentiments means the very life of the nation itself.

JUST CHOICE LIAR.

"The great influence to this country is the influence of the Roman Catholic church in the direction of wiping out civil liberty." Thus saith a distinguished Guardian of Liberty. Will the gentleman name just one instance where the church has interfered with civil liberty in this country? Here the church is free. She has no entangling alliances with the State. She desires so to remain. The great Guardian can not prove what he says. Necessarily it follows that he is none else than a choice liar—that's all.

QUICK HOT SAUCE.

One peck of ripe tomatoes, chopped fine and well drained, two cups chopped celery, two cups chopped onions, one-half cup white mustard seed, two cups granulated sugar, four each of small red and green peppers, using the seeds from one of each; one-half cup salt, and six cups vinegar. Mix together cold and pack in jars. It will be ready to eat in two days. This is easily made because it requires no cooking.

WILL HE LEFT.

The man who expects to get to heaven simply because he calls himself a Christian should begin to practice shoveling coal.

HIBERNIANS.

What They Have Been Doing the Past Week—General News Notes.

Division 4 will meet Monday evening at Bertrand Hall.

State Secretary Foley has organized a splendid division at Hammond, Ind.

The next meeting of the County Board will be held the latter part of the month.

The annual gathering of Hibernians at Portland, Ore., was largely attended and very successful.

Verbal bouquets are still being handed out on the splendid appearing crowd at the recent picnic.

Divisions 3 and 4 are planning social affairs for the benefit of the many young men now in their ranks.

The annual picnic and reunion was the most successful from both an attendance and financial standpoint in years.

All the divisions in Minneapolis will parade next Sunday and assist at the laying of the cornerstone of St. Clement's church.

The Ancient Order held the societies and made a splendid showing in the parade that welcomed home Bishop Schrembs at Toledo last Sunday.

Two very successful affairs have been held under County President W. J. Connelly's administration—the St. Patrick's day entertainment and the annual picnic.

Division 7 of Minneapolis held an Irish dancing contest Wednesday night, in which the best dancers in the State were entered. The proceeds were for the Cathedral building fund.

State Historian Thomas McAvoy has arranged a series of Irish history lectures for the Hibernians of Worcester, Mass., that will be free and continue until April. There will be two each month.

The most enjoyable event of the season at Pueblo, Col., was the invitation dance and reception of the Ladies' Auxiliary at the City Park, at which leading society Catholic girls of the various parishes assisted.

Mrs. Ellen Ryan Jolly, National President of the Ladies' Auxiliary, at the joint conference of the National Boards at Atlantic City made the recommendation that a suitable statue be erected to the memory of the Catholic men who fought in the late war. The recommendation was endorsed by all the officers and it is expected that final action will be taken at the national convention to be held at Norfolk next July.

Ex-National President James E. Dolan has been named by the Democrats as their standard-bearer for Mayor of Syracuse. His Republican opponent is Eugene J. Mack, with Louis Will as the Progressive candidate. Both Dolan and Mack are members of old St. Mary's, now the Cathedral parish, and charter members of Syracuse Council, K. of C. While Dolan would be our choice, we are frank to say that either would make a most satisfactory Mayor for the old Salt City.

DUBLIN HORSE SHOW.

From London the following was cabled to the American press last Saturday:

The scene of interest in the social world has been shifted to Dublin this week. The Irish capital has never been more crowded. Every bed was engaged and even a shake-down on a sofa or billiard table was gratefully accepted. On the shore, from Kingstown to Dublin, travelers rigged up tents, and the proprietors of bathing boxes made a small fortune letting them for sleep.

The American Ambassador and Mrs. Page were the guests of the Viceroy, and Lady Aberdeen accompanied them to the horse show and took part in the ball in the Viceregal Lodge and other functions attended by Lord and Lady Aberdeen. The weather was on its best behavior all the week. The provincial oldest inhabitant is stated to have said there never has been a horse show like this year's. Ceremonies in their gayest mood and taintly the week found the elements everybody had an opportunity to enjoy themselves.

GAYETY THEATER.

The West, that is that part of Western America that is peopled by picturesque Sheriffs, ranchmen, cowboys, cowgirls, miners, Indians and gossamers, has been the locale of a great number of plays. "Where the Trail Divides" was written from a suggestion by Will Lillibridge's novel of the same title. The drama is tremendously interesting, telling a beautiful story of the love of the Sioux for his foster sister. Robert Edeson wrote the play for his own use and he made the part a big one. The late Henry B. Harris magnificently mounted "Where the Trail Divides" and an enlargement of the original production will be seen at the Gayety Theater for one week, commencing with matinee tomorrow.

CATHOLIC KNIGHTS.

Next Friday night the Central Committee, Catholic Knights of America, will meet in St. Mary's Hall, where there will be a number of pleasant surprises. Secretary Ben Kruse and President John Schuda will preside. All the delegates to be present, as the time has arrived for the inauguration of the fall and winter programme, which is intended to awaken interest and increase the membership in all the Falls Cities branches. The Central Committee is now in position to do good work for the greatest of all Catholic fraternal insurance societies.

TAILORS' STRIKE SETTLED.

The differences between the tailoring firms of Long & Evans, J. T. Moran and the Journeymen Tailors' Union were settled Thursday in an amicable manner, the men having been called out on strike last Saturday evening, differences on the wage scale question being the point at issue between the union and the above two firms.

TWIN CITY LEAGUE.

Although not a record-breaking crowd, still there was a good attendance present at the Twin City field meet last Sunday, many free patrons of the Sunday morning games being conspicuous by their absence. Those who attended were indeed well repaid, all of the events being strictly high-class and the ball game between the Reds and the Greens, which was won by the former by a score of 2 to 1, was a thriller all the way. Only two games more remain on the schedule of the league, the games of Sunday, September 14, being the last of the season. The schedule for tomorrow is as follows: Browns vs. Hephurns, Champions vs. Spring Banks, Kentucky Oaks vs. Cadets, and the Shamrocks vs. Athletics, all at Shawnee Park. The standing to date:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Champions.....	14	4	.778
Spring Banks.....	11	6	.647
Kentucky Oaks.....	11	7	.611
Browns.....	9	9	.500
Shamrocks.....	8	9	.471
Hephurns.....	6	10	.375
Cadets.....	6	11	.353
Athletics.....	4	13	.235

LIGHT AT NIGHT.

Brighter, better and bigger than ever before will be the eleventh annual Kentucky State Fair to be held in Louisville during the week September 15-20. This statement is borne out by the work being done by the fair officials and the installation of myriads of electric lights that will turn the grounds into a veritable city of brilliance. There are 2,500 feet of new roadways added to the boulevards of the fair grounds for this year, and every inch of both the new and old roadways will be made into a "white way" as bright as noontime. All of the trees throughout the grounds will be removed and in their place powerful 500-candle-power lights will be installed. The booths and exhibition sheds will share in the augmented radiance, and the cattle and hog barns will for the first time be brightly lighted for night showings. Signs for the various exhibition buildings and side show features will lighten their guidance, throughout the grounds, and the $100,000 pavilion will hold aloft "Hippodrome" bar that will boast nearly 500 blazing incandescents.

CHAPLAIN AT LORETTO.

The Rev. William J. Howlett, for some years past pastor of the Church of St. John the Evangelist at Loveland, Colo., has been appointed chaplain at Loretto Academy, to succeed the late Rev. Edward Drury. He will enter on his duties at once. Father James, of the Passionist order, has acted as chaplain at the academy since the death several months ago of the former chaplain. Father Howlett is well known in literary circles and is a close friend of Father Horgan at old St. Thomas. For years he has been a leading figure at the national conventions of the Catholic Knights of America and is known from one end of the country to the other. His friends here are rejoiced to have him back in Kentucky.

WOULD HELP SOUTH.

Dr. Maurice Francis Egan, the American Ambassador to Denmark, was detained for a few days in Paris owing to the indisposition of Mrs. Egan. He was on his way to Ireland on a month's leave of absence to study out the working of the Danish co-operation system of agriculture in Ireland. Ambassador Egan will see Sir Horace Plunkett, the father of the present Irish system, and possibly Lord Ross, who are interested in the scheme, as well as the Irish Technical Board of Agriculture. Dr. Egan is making this study with the special view of assisting the Southern States of America, which are anxious to learn how to raise an alternative crop if cotton should fail.

STITHTON.

While at Stithton last week the Right Rev. Bishop O'Donoghue blessed and dedicated the new St. Patrick's parochial school just erected by the Rev. Father Ruff. The dedication followed the confirmation services and the Bishop's sermon on the importance of the parochial school. From the church Bishop O'Donoghue and the clergy were escorted in procession to the new school, where the impressive dedicatory ceremonies took place. After the ceremonies the ladies of Stithton served a substantial dinner for the Bishop and clergy. It was certainly a memorable day for Father Ruff and his people.

FEDERATION.

The regular monthly meeting of the Federation of Catholic Societies takes place next Thursday night at the Catholic Woman's Club. President Gans, who is now a Vice President of the American Federation, will review the proceedings of the Milwaukee convention. This promises to be an interesting session, and therefore all delegates are expected to be present. Several matters of vital interest will also be brought forward for discussion and final action.

MAYOR HEAD HOME.

Mayor W. O. Head returned Wednesday from a three weeks' sojourn at Delorkey, Mich., looking much benefited and invigorated by the vacation. When it became known he was at the City Hall his office was soon filled with friends and officials who welcomed him back. Mayor Head complimented Dr. John H. Buschmeyer on his administration of the city's affairs during his absence.

DECORATES PENFIELD.

The Sovereign Pontiff has decorated the new Ambassador of the United States to Austria, Frederic Courtland Penfield, with the Grand Cross of St. Gregory the Great.

IRELAND.

Record of the Most Important of the Recent Events Culled From Exchanges.

Potato blight has made its appearance in the Outreen and Ballymote districts of the County Sligo.

The death occurred suddenly at Killorklin of the Rev. M. McCarthy O'Connor, of the united parishes of Ballymacelligott and Cloghena.

Dr. F. M. Heslion, Tuum, who was appointed medical adviser under the insurance act for County Galway, has sent in his resignation.

Rev. T. Stack, a native of Drumcollogher, County Limerick, has been ordained to the priesthood at Middlesborough by Most Rev. Dr. Lacy.

At a special meeting of the Clare County Council Edmund Murphy, of Danganally, was co-opted a member of the body in the place of the late Mat. Kelly.

The death occurred recently of Patrick McGuinness, of Menorhamilton, at the great age of ninety-two years. He was an active member of the Fenian Brotherhood.

J. J. Parkinson has acquired possession of the Cressard farm, containing close on 100 acres and he intends to erect upon it dwellings for the miners in the Wolfhill collieries.

Dr. W. J. Hackett, of Clogher, was unanimously appointed medical officer of the Tempo Dispensary district by the Enniskillen Board of Guardians. Dr. Hackett was the only applicant.

Michael McLaughlin, an aged farmer living at Bolle, near Limerick, who sustained burns by accidentally falling into the fire, succumbed to his injuries at the Union Infirmary.

At considerable risk Martin Stephen Browne jumped into the water, fully clothed, at the Duras Rock, Galway, and rescued a lad named Hoare. His action was as prompt as it was plucky.

The lace industry in Fermanagh is in a very prosperous condition. It is estimated that the sum of $50,000 is annually earned by lace workers in the county. There is a good demand for the lace in Ireland, England, Scotland and France.

Very Rev. D. B. Falvey, O. P., Prior of St. Catherine's church, of Newry, has been appointed one of the two Irish representatives at the General Chapter of Dominicans from all parts of the world, which takes place at Vercelli, in the Netherlands.

St. Marks, a residence on the shores of Lough Ree, about eight miles from Athlone, has been completely destroyed by fire. The house was occupied by Mrs. Percy Magan, and was the property of Capt. Goff. The fire is believed to have originated through a defective flue.

A beautiful stained-glass window representing St. Colman O'Loathlain, Bishop of Lismore, has been unveiled in the Cathedral at Lismore in memory of the Rev. J. Mockler, who was accidentally killed on May 18, 1911. A handsome memorial cross has also been erected over his grave.

At Clea, near Keady, County Armagh, a rich seam of silver ore has been discovered. It is expected that mining operations will be commenced in a few weeks. The ore is said to contain 25 per cent. of silver. The place is within one and a quarter miles of the railway station.

AGED PASSIONIST DROWNED.

The Rev. Father Christopher Schiesl, one of the oldest missionary priests in the Congregation of Passionists, was drowned in Lake Erie, near Dunkirk, last Friday. While bathing with Father O'Gavin, he was carried out on the crest of a big wave and sank. Father Schiesl was widely known throughout the United States. For twenty-four years he was rector of St. Michael's church, Pittsburgh. He was born in Buffalo sixty-five years ago. A sister in San Jose, Cal., survives.

POPE MUST REST.

According to the Associated Press reports Pope Pius X. is again suffering an indisposition, recalling the serious illness through which the aged Pontiff passed last spring. At the Vatican it is said that his present trouble is slight, due to a cold, but it has brought on hoarseness, headache and a slightly rising temperature, and the Vatican physicians have suggested a complete rest. His Holiness, however, insisted upon keeping engagements he had made for Thursday and he received in audience Cardinal Ferrari, of Milan, who headed a body of Milanese pilgrims. The Pope afterward appeared before the pilgrims themselves and welcomed them to Rome.

COLONELS' HARD TRIP.

The Louisville club will play George Tebeau's leadership aggregation this afternoon, tomorrow and Monday, and then begin the six hardest games of the year, playing three at Milwaukee, beginning Tuesday, and going from there to Minneapolis for three more, these six games in all probability deciding the pennant chances of either of the three teams. As predicted in these columns several weeks ago, Minneapolis would have a hard time dislodging Milwaukee from the top rung, Harry Clark's men still keeping up their fighting spirit, which has been their successful factor all season, and they have lost no ground this past week. It is believed by many that the final outcome of the pennant race will be settled at Louisville when the Milwaukee team will end the season with a four-game series here. If there is no more change in the standing than at present Eclipse Park will certainly be the scene of some excitement. One of our local baseball stars, George "Cack" Harrett, the local umpire, predicts that Minneapolis will have the flag won before that time, but other Minneapolis pickers are not so positive now as a month ago.
